Rancho Brazos News

What Rancho Brazos Community Center means to me? written by Mackenzie McDaniel, 16 yrs. old

I've been asked to write a paper about what Rancho Brazos Community Center means to me, which is hard to explain in words. Because each individual has their own story and personality, I've been there since my 7th grade year, I can't explain the love that goes on in that place to so many kids it's a second home, to some it's simply a place to hang out and be accepted for who they are. Every day with these kids is another adventure I wouldn't trade for the world, Some just think that people that go there are helpless and poor, but that's not the truth if I have learned anything in the past 4 years I've been going there it's that the people of Rancho Brazos may not have a lot but they are the most kind hearted and loving people you'll ever meet. The nights we have community dinner make my heart melt more and more just getting to see all the smiles from families in the community, this place plays a huge role in my life starting with the bonds I have with all the kids to the huge amount of support I get from the volunteers and staff members. You can't go to many places and walk through the front door and feel the huge amount of love I feel when I walk through the front doors at Rancho Brazos Community Center.
